RESEARCH

Vertical Integration in the Carbonated Soft Drinks Industry

- Applied causal inference (diff-in-diff) to find integration increased piggybacking products prices by 0.06%-6% and decreased others by 0.8%-1.3%
- Developed a structural model of consumer behavior and firms' integration and pricing decisions
- Estimated parameters using GMM and numerical methods, applying extensive data sets
- Demonstrated that foreclosure incentives of vertical integration may outweigh efficiency incentives

MFN Clauses and Non-pricing Competition in E-book Markets

- Developed mathematical models to analyze platforms' agency pricing and publishers' innovation efforts
- Computed optimal pricing and investment strategies and equilibrium points using numerical methods
- Identified conditions where non-pricing parity contracts enhance innovation and new product launches
